

THE MBA at A&T

Student Centered. Business Mentored. AACSB Accredited.

At North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University's College of Business and Economics, we're known for something special: how deeply invested our faculty and leadership are in the success of our students. Like many of our other graduates, generations of MBA alumni tell us over and over again that one of the reasons their A&T experience was so valuable is that they learned from people who truly cared about them.

Our MBA students study under extensively experienced, tenured faculty and business executives who bring a wealth of current industry knowledge and expertise to our classrooms. Those professionals deliver a cutting-edge curriculum in three concentrations: Accounting, Human Resource Management and Supply Chain Management. Starting this fall, they'll provide those latter two concentrations in our new Online MBA program, as well as on campus.

The A&T MBA is not only among the state's most affordable, it holds the gold standard in business education accreditation from AACSB International.

In business, standing out from the competition is important. At A&T, our MBA programs stand out for all the right reasons - characteristics that count for our students. We invite you to come see for yourself.
